

“It’s exactly what we wanted.”

When Bob and Mary Brent wanted a weekend place to get away and relax, they selected Lisle Architecture & Design, Inc. to help them. The Wrights wanted enough space for entertaining for their college sons and family guests, as well as a home that would exemplify their personality and take full advantage of their exceptional sound views.

“Before starting the design process, David met with us and our builder. This allowed all of us to fully understand our expectations and design requirements. We would recommend David and his firm to anyone. We truly enjoyed the design process and are completely satisfied with our new home.”

Personal service is the hallmark of Lisle Architecture. With a genuine commitment to quality and detail, they stand behind their work. Recognizing each project as a cooperative effort, David and partner, Kathryn, are problem solvers who identify your design needs and guide you through the finished product. Anyone can sell you a plan, but you owe it to yourself to choose the right architect.

Whether your project is 400 or 14,000 square feet, a renovation or new construction, residential or commercial, Lisle Architecture values your individual needs and is committed to personally seeing them through.
